EXPLOSION KILLS MAN: BLAST TERRIFIES CITY

Workmen Dare Death To Release Oil Tanker In Path Of Flames—Oil Works Power Plant Destroyed

EVERETT, Mass., Dec. 10.—With a roar that could be heard all over this city, an explosion in the Beacon oil works today tore the roof off the power plant and sent flames shooting into the sky. While streams of blazing oil poured out from eight huge tanks.

John Anderson, workman, was picked up bodily by a second explosion and hurled forty feet to a spot where he became a target for one of the oil torrents and was badly burned. Eight other workmen in different parts of the plant fled for their lives before the streams of flaming oil that poured out in different directions.

Hardly had terrified residents been aroused from their sleep when the second blast shook the city as fire caused by the first explosion reached still other tanks of oil.

Nearly a quarter of a mile distant, a policeman, Edward Connelley, was knocked down by the blast.

At the wharf was moored a huge oil tanker, loaded with the inflammable oil. The fire was slowly creeping toward the wharf.

DEFENSE MOTION TO SHIFT TRIAL SCENE AGAIN OVERRULED

Special Panel Is Exhausted Without Seating Jury

COURT HOUSE, CANTON, O., Dec. 10.—For the third time since Patrick E. McDermott went on trial here for his life, defense counsel moved for a change of venue. The motion was overruled.

The entire special panel of forty potential jurors having been exhausted without completing the jury, court was then adjourned until 1 p. m. Meantime, an additional venire was being served.

County Prosecutor C. B. McClintock and his assistants, Henry Harter and James August, who will attempt to prove to the satisfaction of the jurors that McDermott played an important, if not the leading, role in the Mellett assassination, were of the hopeful opinion that the long, drawn-out task of jury-picking would be finished today.

Likewise, Everett L. Mills and Homer Durand, leading the defense counsel of three attorneys, with but two peremptory challenges left to exercise, were confident that a jury will eventually vindicate their youthful client would be decided upon.

The work of selecting the thirteenth jurymen was expected to continue through the afternoon and possibly tomorrow morning. Prosecutor McClintock announced this morning that, as soon as a jury is agreed upon, he will ask the court that the group of talesmen be escorted to the now-vacant Mellett home and take over the scene of the crime.

Defense attorneys immediately stated that, if such were the case, McDermott would accompany the jurors to the scene.

OFFICERS CONCEDE RADIO OPERATOR IS CLEVER AFTER QUIZ

Refuses Information Before Conference With Attorneys

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Los Angeles radio operator, traveling as the voluntary "prisoner" of two Chicago detectives, was expected to reach this city today.

The former Angelus temple radio announcer, under indictment in California in connection with the Aimee Semple McPherson case, was located Wednesday night in Harrisburg, Pa., by a Chicago newspaper reporter.

Following his "arrest," Ormiston voluntarily accompanied the reporter and detectives to the Penn-Harris hotel, where the party spent the night. Early yesterday, they eluded a party of newspapermen who had gathered in the lobby of the hotel and started West by auto.

Ormiston and his "captors" made the trip from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh by automobile, arriving there last night. When they had been installed in a quiet suite at the Hotel Schenley, Ormiston became the target for a bombardment of questions concerning his movements since he left California.

He smilingly declined to give definite answers to all questions. His companions, at the end of the questioning, were quite willing to concede that the elusive radio announcer is exceedingly clever and sharp-witted.

Efforts to pin him down to a serious answer brought a retort like this: "Oh, I'm just one of those dumb bums from the Golden State; how can you expect me to answer your questions in your way?"

Then he did become serious long enough to impart this: "Honestly, though, I must refuse to answer any pertinent questions bearing on the McPherson case until I talk to my attorneys."

Ormiston's attorneys are Edward H. S. and A. W. Martin, of Chicago. His desire to communicate with his attorneys since he had been found seemed to explain his willingness to return to Chicago. Wednesday night he told his discoverers he put up a long "fight" before he went back to California.

Following is the manner in which the phantom radio operator answered the reporter's questions: Q. "When did you see Aimee Semple McPherson last?"

A. "I refuse to answer." Q. "Did you know of any plans made by Mrs. McPherson to disappear?"

A. "I will not answer that or any other question that you ask me." Q. "Who was your companion in the cottage at Carmel-by-the-sea?"

A. "Why do you continue shooting such stuff at me?" Q. "Do you know where Mrs. McPherson spent the time she claimed she was kidnapped?"

A. "I told you I'm dumb, deaf and blind." Q. "How was your name brought into the McPherson case?"

A. "By the newspapers of course." Q. "Did you own the trunk found in New York?"

INSURANCE CHIEFS HEAR SPEECH WHICH LAUDS CO-OPERATION

Contrasts Spirit With Tactics In Other Business

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Speaking before the annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents at the Hotel Astor this afternoon, Julian Price, president of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, Greensboro, N. C., lauded the spirit of co-operation prevailing throughout the profession and attributed the growth of the smaller companies during recent years to the helpfulness and patronage of the big corporations.

Price's remarks were given the place of honor as the concluding address on the program. He contrasted this co-operative spirit with the "cut-throat tactics" often employed by corporations against smaller competitors in other lines of business.

The companies of the older group have not rested content with mere acquiescence in the growth of the newer companies, he said. "They frequently have published facts of value to the business as a whole but particularly valuable to the younger companies. They freely joined in co-operative investigations and in public discussions of the professional common problems. They have favored the passage of legislation designed to meet the legitimate needs of the younger companies."

GOVERNMENT COUNSEL MOVES TO BREAK DOWN DOHENY'S STORY

Roberts Cross-Examines Defendant In Oil-Lease Fraud Case—Tempers Questions Due To Doheny's Illness

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Owen J. Roberts, government counsel, today drove hard under cross-examination to break down E. L. Doheny's story of his $100,000 loan to ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall.

Doheny had testified previously on the witness stand at his trial for conspiracy that the loan to Fall was a private transaction between old friends and that he had consented to bid for the Elk Hills naval oil reserve and the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, oil storage contracts because of fear of a Japanese invasion on the American Pacific coast.

Because of Doheny's weakened physical condition, Roberts did not display his usual aggressive manner of questioning. "You made the December 11 lease (on the Elk Hills naval reserve) with the idea of profit?" asked Roberts.

"Yes, sir." "Didn't it occur to you that suspicion might arise from the loaning to an official of the interior department of a large sum of money?"

"No, sir." "Was there any reason why you shouldn't have told anyone about the transaction?"

"No." "Well, why did you send the money in cash?"

"Because Mr. Fall wanted it that way." "But couldn't he have cashed a check in a Washington bank?"

"I guess so." "Did you make any record of the transaction in your books?"

"Only as it is recorded in the bank books."

NIKOLA PACITCH IS DEAD; WAS FORMER SLAVIAN MINISTER

Famous Leader Of Radicals Called After Long Illness

BELGRADE, Dec. 10.—Nikola Pacitch, famous radical leader of the Balkans and former prime minister of Jugoslavia, died today at the age of eighty-one.

Death came as the result of a long illness, added to the infirmities of old age.

Nikola Pacitch had been active in Balkan politics for nearly sixty years, during all of which time he has been a factor to be reckoned with in any dealings with the Balkan peoples. He was ever a fearless, picturesque, headstrong leader. He was known as the "Grand Old Man of Serbia."

During his political career he saw many changes in the Balkans. His life was bound up with the fortunes of little Serbia, the center of so much intrigue and bickering. He was prime minister more than a dozen times. He was twice sent to prison because of differences with the Obrenovitch dynasty.

His greatest triumph was at the Paris peace conference, when he succeeded in bringing the Croats, Serbs and Slovenes to accept the present constitution of Jugoslavia, thus insuring a greater Serbia.

SEARCH NIGHT CLUBS FOR "MODEL HUSBAND"

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Courtney Glisson, "model husband" and bank teller of Memphis, Tenn., who is accused of a shortage of $463,976, was being sought in the night-club district of New York today.

When Glisson left Memphis on October 27, in a new automobile, he didn't indicate he was coming to the night life of New York. On the contrary, he said he was "going to make good." The Bank of Commerce and Trust Company of Memphis, where he had been employed, made public a letter from Glisson which said:

"I am now on an honorable road and will be back in a couple of years and pay off everything."

The bank, however, is not going to wait that long. Hence the police activity in New York. A reward of $5,000 for information leading to his arrest has been offered by the American Surety Company.

Glisson is said to have been an active church worker, a model husband and a man who never drank or smoked. He is alleged to have taken the bank's money for investment in the manufacture of an automobile body finish. He had been employed in the bank since boyhood. He left a wife and a child in Memphis.

The frock charming for luncheons and teas is of black crepe satin. It is distinctive from the cut of its unusual neck line to the edge of the short-pleated skirt. The bodice is bloused just above the hips, which are girdled with a broad sash edged with crocheted cut steel beads. On the sash, which is draped tightly, is a narrow pointed band appliqued with the steel beads and embroidered in rosettes of the beads. Two satin ends drop in front. The neck is a low V with two tiny reverses edged with the steel beads. The sleeves are long and loose, caught in at the wrists closely and edged with the beads. The skirt is knife-pleated near the hips for a few inches and box-pleated to the bottom, where the steel edging appears again.

This smart costume of black features the new cut steel bead trimming that is in vogue this season.

CITY ADMINISTRATION GIVEN BOUQUETS BY STATE EXAMINER

"Mistakes of the head and not of the heart" were the only findings for recovery listed in a report received Friday of an examination of the City's records, accounts, and documents conducted by State Examiner Frank B. Inomas, of the State Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, covering the "eighteen-months" period from March 1, 1925 to August 31, 1926.

The report took up sixty-two pages of typewritten copy and was devoted mainly to an exhaustive summary of business transacted by city officials during the period. Findings made were of a technical nature for inadvertently failing to strictly comply with the law in small matters and the report was on the whole complimentary.

Bouquets were tossed at the Police Department and Mayor John W. Prugh for "being active in prosecuting offenders as evidenced by the large number of cases docketed." The municipal water department has also been handled

MOHAMMEDAN TALKS WILL END SUNDAY

Combination vesper services at the Presbyterian Church Sunday at 4 o'clock, will feature a series of selected scenes of Mohammedan life, by stereopticon. Mrs. J. P. White will describe the pictures as they are shown on the screen. Among the pictures will be scenes along the Nile. Mrs. White, speaking Sunday, closes her engagement in the combination vesper services of the Reformed and Presbyterian Churches. The program will be a fitting climax to an unusual series of services, covering many phases of Mohammedan life, with pictures out of the vivid experiences of a missionary's life, which have pleased and instructed the audiences each Sunday.

SPORTS AND EDUCATION

"What Price Education?" asks the Better Schools League of Chicago, and therewith brings up the question of the relative value of sports and education.

"Football", continues the statement issued recently from the headquarters of the League, looms large in the interest of the nation. It is associated almost wholly with our institutions of learning and is conceded the leader of sports, both in college and high school.

"This leads to a speculation as to the relative position of the country's sports and its education. Education is the very life of the nation—sports its pastime. The former, like our water and air, is taken for granted and almost considered routine; the latter is dramatic, impulsive and full of motion.

"We are not belittling the value of sports in the life of people. We recognize their unifying influence in our institutions. It is a healthful sign when our citizens grow in their love for outdoor play. There is a tendency, however to indulge in these exercises and sports purely by proxy.

"It is a fact that the nation's expenditure for spectacular sports makes the outlay for education look insignificant. We have recently completed the World Baseball Series which approached a million and a quarter gate receipts; our last big prize fight, two million dollars. This latter figure is but a fraction of the cost of the fight when the other expenses of the fans are estimated. The American public paid this price for a two-man combat that lasted a total of thirty-nine minutes, and yet in this country we spend but a billion and a half dollars yearly to train twenty-three million boys and girls for a fight that lasts an average approximating thirty-nine years."

This line of reasoning, however, can be carried on indefinitely. Sports is only one form of pastime engaged in by the American public. Golf, tennis, hunting, motoring, theatres, etc., all exact their quota from the pocketbook of the great masses.

If we take into consideration all forms of spending, to gratify some particular desire, the amount spent for education would be small indeed, in comparison.

The question is food for much serious thought.

WOMEN, OXEN AND STABLES

American soldier boys were stunned with surprise when they saw French women harnessed with an ox to the plow; other peasants hiding three or four francs in a hole in an old tree, instead of putting the money in the bank.

The present writer has in the course of years known hundreds of European immigrants who, later in life have become rich and influential Americans; but only on rare occasions has he ever heard a word about the real life of the continental peasant. The same applies to the higher classes over there.

Why this strange silence? It is not on account of pride, not lack of interest in self, but for some reason Americans of the second and third generation are densely ignorant of most ordinary social conditions in Europe; whereas, it would seem since all Americans stem back to immigrant ancestors, our people should not have to go to Europe to know about the hard life of our ancestors.

We should be the best-posted people in the world, on European conditions, but as a matter of fact, we are very poorly posted.

If you saw the misery, rags and poverty, of the masses in Europe, you would no longer wonder that the fortunate emigrant, once he passes Ellis Island, wastes no time, works 12 or 14 hours a day at his fruit stand, boot-blackening shop, quick-lunch, trade or craft. Few foreigners, once America is tried, ever are willing to return to live in the Old World.

The more you know of life, over there, the better Americans you become. The contrast between European misery, hunger and caste, and American independence, equality and opportunity will not surprise even a one-eyed man, once the facts are told.

Let the children and the grandchildren know the truth.

We Thought It Was Drowned

How to Achieve Beauty

CHIC AS AN ALLY TO BEAUTY
Symmetry of Line Important to "Chic"

To retain a figure that is symmetrical in line, after one has passed the early thirties (perhaps even before that), requires an appreciable degree of thought in regard to diet and a consistent adoption of exercises that will eliminate and guard against the gaining of superfluous flesh. If you do, you will acquire a supple lithe figure—the fundamental requisite of the woman who aims for a chic appearance.

After you have adopted a sensible diet, a daily regime of simple but beneficial exercises is the next important step. I do not mean by this advice that only the woman who wishes to take off weight should adopt these daily exercises, but also every woman who wishes to retain the graceful contour of a healthy body.

Natural outdoor exercises such as walking, riding, swimming, are of course, most beneficial and pleasant. If you cannot take advantage of these, then you should by all means cultivate a regime of exercises that will take but ten or fifteen minutes of your entire day and which will work wonders in your well being.

After arising in the morning is the best time to take these exercises, but this is not essential, as any time during the day that suits you best will answer the purpose. Do not rush through your exercises. Concentrate your mind on what you are doing and you will get through them quickly and more efficiently.

Systematic exercises will not only keep your figure symmetrical and graceful in line, but it will also act as a cure for many ills. Stomach and intestinal troubles are often the result of relaxed muscles and are in turn often cured by practicing the proper exercises.

The simplest kind of setting-up exercises with which you are all, no doubt, familiar, enlarge the thoracic cavity and give more lung space, help headaches, constipation and backaches. Proper development of the muscles, especially those of the abdomen, considerably aids most of the troubles that affect women. Correct breathing is, of course, essential for all forms of exercise. Endeavor to breathe as much fresh air as possible, both where you live and where you work. You should also make an effort to be out in the open air at least two hours out of twenty-four.

And now in connection with the retaining of a healthy and graceful body, we come to the important subject of proper corseting. Corsets have a definite bearing upon both your health and the beauty of your figure and it is indeed gratifying to note what a sensible health protecting garment the modern corset has become. Heavily steeled and boned garments belong to the past generation. The modern woman, in all walks of life, strives for a more natural effect, both in her figure and her manner, than did our grandmothers.

However, although corsets are more and more following the natural tendencies of the figure, they cannot be hastily or inefficiently chosen. It is essential that you put yourself in the hands of a reputable corsetiere when selecting a corset, even though it may be necessary to practice economy in other directions. The wrong corset can completely spoil the smartness of an otherwise perfect appearance.

The woman of fastidious taste has a corset for each occasion, the style and weight of it depending on the type of costume she expects to wear with it.

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C KELLY

THE DOWNTRODDEN RICH
If there is any group of people that arouse my sympathy it is the rich.

Nobody ever seems to have a good word for them, no matter what route they took in gaining riches.

While a guest at a noonday lunch club yesterday, I heard three or four men discussing various wealthy citizens.

First they weighed in the balance a typical self-made man who by sheer industry and shrewdness, starting with nothing, has built up a manufacturing business known all over the world.

"My aunt used to know his parents," remarked one of my table mates. "Neither one of them could read or write. They ate with their knives, sewed the children in their underwear for the winter, and were rough talkers. Today his daughter goes to a well school in the east and has the manners of a princess. Imagine that!"

The rest solemnly shook their heads over the absurdity of a man starting so humbly and now being a person of consequence. Then the talk turned to another local man of wealth, his family long prominent socially.

"What's he ever done?" asked one of the diners. "He's the head of a big business, of course. But it was a going concern when he was a boy. The whole thing was handed to him. All he had to do was just stay along with it and watch it grow. If his family hadn't had so much money and influence, who would ever have heard of him?"

The next fellow they discussed had had the foresight to fall in love with a rich woman.

"A prominent citizen and yet all he ever had he got from his wife."

And all laughed heartily at his expense. In other words, no matter how a man becomes rich, people are reluctant to give him much credit. If he made it himself, they bring up his humble start. If his family had money to begin with, then everybody is sure he couldn't have made it himself. If he acquired his wealth by uxorious means, that proves that he realized his inability to get it any other way. Never a soft word for the rich. Of course, the answer is easy. We're all a little jealous of the rich.

GOVERNOR HEARS REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON HOME SITUATION

(Special to the Gazette)
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 10.—Gov. Vile Donahue here this afternoon, was in conference with the committee chosen to conduct a survey at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphan's Home, Xenia, with a view to determining the present and future needs of the institution. The committee includes: Adj. Gen. F. D. Henderson, representing the governor; State Supreme Judge E. S. Matthias, chairman and representing the Spanish-American War Veterans; Col. M. D. Allen, member of the board of trustees of the Home; R. H. Carroll, Cleveland, state commander of Spanish-American War Veterans; Col. M. D. Campbell, Cincinnati, representing the American Legion; Capt. Herbert R. Mooney, Woodsfield, state commander of the American Legion.

A ten-year building improvement program to adequately take care of children during that period at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphan's Home was to be outlined by Campbell. Campbell was scheduled to present the findings of the Legion's survey of the Home during the past year. Campbell and members of the committee will point out that conditions at the Home in many instances have been deplorable through neglect by the state. It is claimed that hospital and educational facilities are not up to standard. It is further charged that two school buildings have been condemned by state authorities as unsafe. He also cited the fact that 85 per cent of the children in the Home suffer from bad or deformed feet because of the lack of proper last in the shoe-making department. The Legion is most interested in the program for extensive improvements believing that face the fact for caring for the children will become inadequate within a few years.

BATH HIGH SCHOOL COURT PROSPECTS UNUSUALLY BRIGHT

Prospects were never brighter at Bath Twp. High School than this for a successful basketball season, is the optimistic conclusion reached by Coach H. K. Baker.

Coach Baker draws this conclusion from the fact the court squad at Bath has been but slightly hit by graduation. Only one player is lost from the 1925-26 team.

Bath has arranged a schedule of played on the home floor beginning December 10 with Bowersville. During the course of the season Osborn will be called upon to face such strong outfits as Miamisburg, Xenia, Piqua and Dayton Roosevelt.

The team will also participate in the annual Greene County Basketball Tournament February 27 and 28. The complete schedule follows:

December 10.—Bowersville at home.
December 17.—Miamisburg at home.
December 23.—Oakwood at Dayton.
January 7.—Tippecanoe City away.
January 14.—Xenia at home.
January 22.—Yellow Springs away.
January 29.—Cedarville at home.
February 4.—Piqua away.
February 9.—Beaver Creek at home.
February 19.—Roosevelt at Dayton.
February 27-28.—County tournament.

MIAMI CEMENTS WIN FROM TROY QUINTET

The newly formed Miami Cements led both teams in scoring with nineteen points, two less than the total points amassed by Troy. Baker accounted for fifteen of the winning team's markers and was not far behind in scoring.

The Radios were completely out classed and outplayed at all stages and in all departments of the game and were able to break through the Miami defense for points at only long intervals. The winners retained possession of the ball three-fourths of the time.

COMMISSION MEETS
City Commission met in regular session at City Hall Thursday night and transacted little besides routine business. Monthly bills were read and approved and Commissioners adjourned after a brief meeting.

BOWLING

Fords, one of the contending teams for the championship of the Xenia Bowling League, plumb the depths of bowling mediocrity in losing a set of three games to the last-place Artesians Thursday night in a match that upset all calculations. Artesians were at the peak of bowling form they seldom achieve and won all three games easily with Bill Smith and Fred Horner upsetting the most pins. Box score:

It All Goes Back to the Original Provider

PURE MILK

Milk, cream, butter, cottage cheese.... their purity can be insured by careful pasteurization after the cow provides the basis.

But their richness, their actual nourishment value, all go back to the cow herself. A sturdy, well nourished cow naturally gives much richer milk than just an "ordinary" cow.

We look out for the nourishment of the cow. We insist that all our dairies provide rich pastures, the finest hay and winter food obtainable....everything possible to make fat, healthy cows.

That explains the extra nourishment value in our daily products.... their richness and their extra flavor!

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

Just AMONG US GIRLS by Kathryn Kenney

"THERE'S THE RUB"

Women will always put more waves in their hair than they put in their gray matter which is one reason why it is easier to get into college than it is to get into a beauty parlor. The transformation has brought many a woman a second husband, many a matrimonial decision hangs by a hair! Woman owes it to the world to look her best, or at least not to appear until the hair is out of curl papers. Women used to wash their own hair and dry it at home. Think of all the scandal they missed! There is no place where there is more talk and more unseen listeners than in the beauty parlor, a barber shop doesn't know the half of it.

Women cut their hearts out with their cuticle. There is something about a facial massage that loos-ens on your head. Years afterward, if you can raise your head far enough she turns on the dryer and a better line of conversation. Some people rub your head too gently, others don't have to say, "there's the rub," you know it! Women have their hair dyed because they're aged in the wood.

Unless you have a permanent wave you can listen to the escapades of all your friends talked over in adjoining booths while you have a wave. What are the wild waves saying—it's hard to hear but easier to tell! Everything in the beauty line is as permanent as possible nowadays, the permanent nail polish has taken all the hazard out of hand holding. No girl wants to break down in the middle of the evening because she goes home to mother for repairs.

WHAT ARE THE WILD WAVES SAYING?

ens the tongue as well as the muscles. Now that so many women are letting their hair go they will have to do their boyish cutting somewhere else.

We are born with a face but we don't do with the same one unless we can't afford to have it lifted. Some women should be glad to not only have their faces lifted but to never have them returned. The eyebrows no longer follow the line of least resistance and they are often plucked before their time.

You go into a beauty parlor for a shampoo and after twenty minutes you are dragged into a booth where the girl's hard luck is taken

Every hair in place, is the motto of the beauty expert and the more in our place the better! The beauty parlor takes up a greater part of the time of the majority of women, and if they don't look like remember you haven't seen them without the high finish. Any woman knows that a dull finish is better than a shiny one for the nose. The shiny finish makes for a dull one in the end.

What we want to know is—if these are "beauty" parlors, where do the homely women go? Nobody knows and nobody cares. The hairdresser knocks wood twenty times a day, what luck she must have!

EVERY STORE IN XENIA IS A XMAS GIFT STORE

YOUR SWEETHEART OR YOUR BEAU, OR JUST A FRIEND?
To the young person the gift of most consequence is the one which is to go to the "boy friend" or "girl friend."

It should be remembered, of course, that it is in poor taste for a boy to give an expensive present to a girl to whom he isn't engaged or one to whom he hasn't made his serious intentions known. The same holds true for girls. Gifts should pass only between real friends; a pretty card is sufficient where there is only a good acquaintanceship existing.

In picking a gift for a man, women should shun ties and socks. Handkerchiefs are all right, although they display lack of originality.

Most girls feel that they would like to give the B. F. something that will last, in which case the inevitable cuff links or the watch chain are the only articles of jewelry considered in good taste. Scotch sweaters with those to match are acceptable, and a more lasting gift is to be found in the new alligator bill folds with their white gold corners.

Other suggestions for fitting out the boy friend are a Swiss muffler in white or the new heavy twill mufflers in plaids of checks. A new idea which has been introduced this year is the heavy driving gloves with little lights fastened at the cuffs. By pressing the first and second fingers together the light is pressed on and the hand may be held out effectively in turning dark corners. The braided pigskin belt is another item.

The average man is apt to give a girl candy or flowers or the wrong sort of perfume unless he is engaged to her and jewelry is in order. The new evening bags of rhinestones and pearls make nice gifts, as do plated link bracelets with green or corallian colored stones; sterling silver bracelets set with cabochons; perfume in the attractive new containers. If a more expensive gift is desired, one of the new metal cloth shawls for evening wear is suggested. An intriguing article of the toilet for the best girl is a box of white face powder with four vials of tinted powder and a test tube in which to blend a mixture to the individual complexion.

More gift suggestions tomorrow.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

As this is the time when daddy goes a-hunting and occasionally catches a rabbit, perhaps rabbit soup will appeal more to the housewife than any other sort of preparation.

RABBIT SOUP

Clean the joints of the rabbit carefully, crack the bones and put in half a pound of diced salt pork, five stalks of celery cut up, a chopped onion and enough cold water to cover. Bring the mixture to a boil and boil for two hours. Then add three pints of boiling water, some mace, pepper and a bunch of sweet herbs. Cook the soup two hours longer. Remove from the fire, strain and put back on the stove. Thicken with a tablespoon of browned flour moistened to a thin paste with cold water. Add salt and pepper to taste, a tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce and serve.

BROWN RICE HONEY PUDDING

Steam half a cupful of brown rice. Pour six tablespoons of honey into a shallow pan and brown. Add the rice and one quarter cup of raisins to the brown honey. Add also one-half tablespoon of butter, cinnamon and one half tablespoon of lemon juice and bake until the mixture is a golden brown. Serve with whipped cream.

THEY PLAY LEADS IN "OUTWARD BOUND" FRIDAY

RUTH HARKER

CHARLES L. WOOLRICH

Miss Ruth Harker, White Plains, N. Y., and Charles L. Woolrich, Pittsburgh, Pa., have the leading parts in "Outward Bound," Sutton Vane's popular and unusual play, which The Antioch Players, a group of dramatic art enthusiasts from Antioch College, Yellow Springs, will present at Central High School auditorium Friday night. Miss Harker has starred in a number of the productions of this group, which has been bringing some of the more sophisticated plays to this community. Miss Imogene Putnam is directing the cast.

TROUBLED WITH HARD PIMPLES

Scattered Over Face. Was Ashamed to Go Out. Cuticura Healed.

"For months I was troubled with pimples which seemed to be getting worse all the time. The pimples were hard, large and red and festered. They were scattered all over my face, and looked so badly that I was ashamed to go out in public. I tried everything I could think of without benefit. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Fannie Lippy, 347 N. Front St., Middleport, Ohio.

Prevent pimples by daily use of Cuticura Soap, assisted by touches of Cuticura Ointment as needed to soothe and heal.

"Women ought not to be allowed to drive automobiles. Their nervous systems are so keyed that they cannot react quickly and rationally in crises."—Dr. Alexander Crappell, French psychiatrist.

"Less than one per cent of the men working in science today—in fact, not more than about 200 of them in the world—are willing to give credence to the contentions of the spiritualists or to believe any of the things that the metaphysicians claim."—Prof. Joseph Justow, noted psychologist of University of Wisconsin.

"If I had my way I would send all these criminals down to Sandy Hook, have a 100-pound weight attached to them, and then drop them overboard."—Magistrate Fowell in Brooklyn court, in passing

"Youth, as I see it, is building up a new psychology of reaction to life. It has not been able to accept the limitations of the standards of former generations. Social relationships have changed tremendously and youth, as a result, is endeavoring to build up a modern standard to fortify himself in the battle against modern problems."—Charles Brandon Booth, national field secretary of Big Brother and Sister federation.

HUGE SHORTAGE IS FOUND IN VILLAGE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 10.—Findings for reconviction totaling $58,612.85 are contained in a report made public here today by State Auditor Joseph Tracy covering examination of the records in the Yorkville Village offices, Jefferson County, by state examiners.

The report stated that $57,770.98 was due the village treasury from Walter Jokovich, as village treasurer, Sam Davis and Boie Klavie, bondsmen, as a result of the failure of the Union Savings Bank at Yorkville, in which village funds had been deposited.

A similar finding, amounting to $2,227.90 was returned against A. J. Tolbert, Jr., and David Hopkins, sinking-fund commissioners.

The report also ruled that Jokovich should repay into the village firemen's indemnity fund $374.42 as a result of the bank's failure. In the event that the village receives any settlement from the bank, such payments shall be credited against these findings, the report declared.

Claim that $900 was illegally paid out to detectives from the village's share of Crabbe dry-law fines was contained in the report.

The scholarships, including all expenses, are being paid for by Abraham Erlanger, wealthy New York manufacturer, who believes that more American young people should make agriculture their means of livelihood. Director Riegel announced that any boys and girls in Ohio between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one will be eligible for the scholarships and that all who are interested should write to him at once.

Sayre's Drug Store

A Message From Moon

I am cutting down lengthy comment on ITEMS this week and will continue this plan until after the Holidays. What folks want NOW are IDEAS on what to buy for HIM or HER. They can stand a medium amount of spoofing and conversation but what they will really appreciate is a suggestion which will help them solve their problem of "What'll I get HER" and "What will I get HIM?"

As you will note in this week's copy I suggest carrying only a short comment from you and Shorty further suggesting that you set this the usual two columns wide flanked by two headings: "Gosh!" and "Migosh!" These two headings take the place of the worn out "For Him" and "For Her." If you care to use a heading "Good Gosh!" the items under this letter can be sexless.

"Gosh" items:—Military Sets, Leather Bill Folds, Pipe sets, Cigarettes, Books, Ash Trays, Prescriptions, Card Sets, Poker Chips, Wrist Watches, Flasks, Juniper Oil and Flashlights.

"Migosh" items:—Pyralis Sets, Toilet Sets, Compacts, Perfumery, Cigarette Holders, Cigarette Cases, Leather Bags, Manicure Sets, Sewing Sets, Stationery, Atomizers, Atomizer Sets, Candle Sticks and Sets, Infant Sets, Towel Sets, Bath Mats, Candy and Dainties.

"Good Gosh" items:—Fountain Pens, Desk Sets, Clocks, Ash Trays, Greeting Cards, Card Sets, Cigarette Sets and holders; Stationery and a host of others which you are better able to select from your own stock.

All that is necessary is to set up the NAME of the item under the proper heading and attach a PRICE like: "Pipes, wide selection, 50c to $9."

In case you feel the need of a couple of items handled in the usual way I am adding a few for use as you see fit.

I advise you to keep the slogan "LAY IT AWAY" in a prominent place over a row of Selfish Reasoning!

There are certain times during the year when it becomes ABSOLUTELY necessary for us druggists to quit being philanthropic and settle down to real business! The HOLIDAY SEASON is ONE of those times so if you can stand for us being a bit HARD today we will try and make it up to you some OTHER time. Thank you.

There are simply scores of splendidly interesting items in a drug store such as ours for use as Christmas Gifts for all names on your list. These articles have been carefully selected, have been PRICED right and are mity well worth while. Given your attention if you intend to do any shopping at all, at all!

WE WANT YOU TO SHOP HERE FIRST!

If you feel that we have no business butting into this question of Christmas Shopping we would be very interested in having you come in and give us THREE GOOD REASONS WHY! We will do our BEST to show polite and thorough interest in your views but you're going to have a tuff time convincing US that we should keep OFF this subject!

We feel that we are acting real noble in giving you fair warning of this kind. Signed—DOC SAYRE.

Shorty Says:

I'm the dodo which can tell Doc those THREE REASONS!

The FIRST REASON is that you can NOT buy an Automobile at a Drug Store.

The SECOND REASON is that you have to go to the City Hall to get a really FIRST CLASS marriage license!

The THIRD REASON is that its against the LAW to sell it at Drug Stores any more!

Can you figure any BIGGER Christmas than to be presented with a new auto, a new marriage license (fully equipped) and a Jug of Christmas "cheer"?

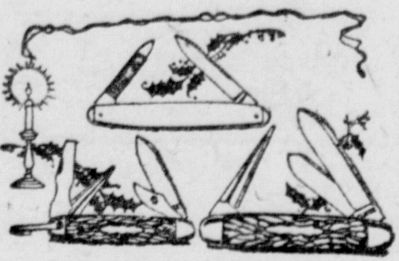

Its a FACT, however, that you can get pretty near everything ELSE here however!

tery rather than any sordid touch. It has thrilled, chilled, and delighted audiences in the larger cities from New York to San Francisco. It is still on the road and is being bought for production in this territory only by payment of what is probably the highest royalty ever demanded for rights in this district.

Xenia is the first community outside the college town to see this production by the Players. It is expected that Springfield will be among the cities to see it after the holidays.

BOY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Seven-year-old son of Charles Grimes, colored, Jasper Pike, received a possible fracture of his shoulder and painful bruises when he was struck by an auto, the driver of which is unknown, near his home, Thursday noon.

The boy was returning home from school for luncheon. He was unable to give a clear account of the accident and was dazed for some time after. He was taken to a physician for an X-ray examination of his shoulder injury.

The driver of the car stopped after striking the boy and gave the family money for the doctor fee, but his name was not leant. The boy's hurts are not thought serious.

Cooper, who preceded her in death twenty-four years. Fred Baugh, who resided at her home, was reared from boyhood by Mrs. Cooper. She also leaves two sisters, Mrs. O. E. Bales, W. Little Old New York

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1926
NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Catering to those who entertain an aversion to being hustled to the tomb in a hearse manufactured by the Eminent Tinsmith of Detroit, a New York mortician advertises: "Old fashioned horse drawn funerals. To those not aware of the comforts of the horse-drawn service, I wish to state I can fill all requirements."

I have had a feeling for a long time that some bootlegger was going to come along and offer The Stuff for sale in little cubes—the way they sell concentrated essence of ex. Sure enough one of them advertised in an evening paper: "Fort, Muscatel, Rhine, Sherry, Burgundy, etc., in brick form. No equipment necessary. One brick makes a gallon."

If the innovation makes a hit, you won't be able to tell, after awhile, when you see a load of bricks in front of a man's house, whether he's about to add another Corinthian pillar to the chateau or is merely laying in supplies for a party.

they had been paying for years—and down came the signs and the smile went out of Miss Central's voice. She quit, telling her "thrr-r-ees," and telephoning became an unsatisfactory venture as a visit to a barber shop.

You call your office today, from your home, and they connect you with the head attendant at the mad house.

You call your home from your office and you find yourself talking to the walrus' valet at the aquarium.

"New York," according to a newspaper headline, "will soon telephone London."

"Yes," commented a disgruntled subscriber, "and get Lisbon."

At the Anderson Galleries the other evening some books belonging to A. Edward Newton, author of "The Amusements of Book Collecting," were sold for $3,931. The collection was catalogued as "The Books of a Busted Bibliophile."

After the sale, when Brother Newton found he had realized 10,000 beans on the collection, he said: "I am not really 'busted.' I was merely trying to be facetious."

The chief element of humor is discrimination.

A stray dog loped down Broadway several days ago—the lone, somewhat looking thing I ever saw. He'd pause, now and then in the doorway of a lady shop, a hat store, a theater ticket agency, stand with one paw lifted, giving the interior the once over, and sensing an unwelcome atmosphere, would wheel and resume his interrupted journey southward.

He arrived at Forty-second street as the traffic was going east and west. It was easy to see he knew nothing of traffic regulations, but his instinct would have held him to the curb until a more propitious crossing offered, had not an impatient jay walker stepped out into the tangle of vehicles.

The dog looked up at the man as much as to say: "If you're game, I am," and together they proceeded.

Once or twice when the breeze from a passing taxi fanned the bone polisher's tall with too vociferous a sweep, he gazed at the jay walker in appeal: "I'm trusting to your judgment in this narrow stretch, you know. You WILL be your age, won't you?"

They both successfully negotiated the opposite curb after several hair-breadth escapes and that was the last I saw of either.

When a dog, by his mere presence on a street, sticks out like a freckle on a Folly Girl's nose, that street is artificial and inadequate.

White lights and $17,000,000 movie houses are poor substitutes for the human touch.

'SCANDALS' SLOW SO DAYTON GIRL QUILTS

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 10.—Patricia Moore, 18, former Dayton high school girl, found the "Scandals" too prosaic, so she chucked her job as a "pony" in the chorus and came here to join the "Follies." Now she is in jail.

"The manager wanted me to wear a yellow wig but I wouldn't do it," she told reporters. So she and another girl took a room in a hotel, where they ran up a $16.50 bill while they looked for employment. The hotel manager caused her arrest.

Patricia's parents, five brothers and two sisters are said to live in Dayton, where she claims to have attended Steele high school.

HONEY LOU by Beatrice Burton
© JOHNSON FEATURES INC., 1926
"author of 'LOVE BOUNDS' and 'HER MAN' ETC."

READ THIS FIRST:
HONEY LOU HUNTLEY is private secretary to old GRUMPY WALLACK, head of the Wallack Fabric Mills. Honey Lou likes everyone at the mills except JOE MEADOWS, the shipping clerk, who makes love to her against her will.

JACK WALLACK, who comes to his father's mills to learn the business, falls in love with Honey Lou the minute he sees her. Brought up by an old-fashioned mother, Honey Lou is a mixture of flapper and clinging vine.

ANGELA ALLEN pretends to be a friend of Honey Lou and tells her not to take Jack seriously. Jack is very jealous of DR. STEVE MAYHEW, a friend of MARGRET, Honey Lou's sister.

Honey Lou tells her mother that she is to marry Jack Wallack the next day, but her mother asks her to wait and have a wedding. Honey Lou's engagement is announced and plans are made for the wedding.

Honey Lou and Jack settle down in their own flat with Mary Delaney, the cook. Margaret comes home with Honey Lou for dinner and Steve Mayhew calls to take her home.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER XXXV

"Honey Lou, you go and let Steve in," Margaret said and vanished into Honey Lou's bedroom with its rose-shaded lights, its great carved bed, its long toilet table that would have done credit to a motion picture star's dressing room.

She was still powdering her nose and putting on her hat while Stephen Mayhew's knock came on the front door of the flat; and so Honey Lou was alone when she opened it to let him in.

She saw at once that this was hard for him—meeting her for the first time as Jack Wallack's wife. His face was white and tense-looking, his mouth drawn into a thin tight line that tried to smile and failed.

It was a full minute before he spoke a word. Then all he said was "Hello, Honey Lou, is Margaret ready? I left my motor running."

That was his excuse to get away as soon as possible.

"I thought you'd stay a while and visit with me," Honey Lou forced herself to say in a normal tone. "I wanted to thank you, too, for the table you sent me. It's a love."

She stopped with the sentence unfinished and held up her hand,

"I'M GOING TO CALL UP DONEGAL," SHE SAID

listening. Someone was running up the stairs.

In another second, Jack, breathless from the climb, flung open the door and stepped into the little hallway. His blue eyes went from his wife's face to Steve Mayhew's, and the look of hot jealousy that Honey Lou knew so well, flashed into them.

"What are you doing here, Mayhew?" he asked before Honey Lou had time to speak to him. The words gitted through his set teeth and suspicion was stamped on his face.

Honey Lou went dead white with shame, flushed crimson, and then went dead white once more. "Oh, Jack, how can you?" she was beginning when Margaret opened the door of the bedroom at the end of the hall, and came toward the three of them.

She saw at once that something was wrong. Honey Lou could tell that by the frightened, puzzled look that crossed her face like a dark shadow.

But Margaret had been dealing with nervous hysterical people for years and years at Holy Cross hospital, and her training there helped her now.

"Hello, Jack," she said, and her quiet smile seemed to gloss things over. "Sorry you weren't here for supper. Honey Lou and I had such a nice visit."

She turned to Stephen Mayhew. "Hello, Stevens, I suppose you want to go right away, don't you?"

She slipped her arm into his and the pair of them went out. Afterward, Honey Lou could not even remember whether she said good-night to them or not. Her brain seemed to be whirling like a merry-go-round in her head.

"Well, if you aren't the pink limit!" She turned blazing eyes to Jack when the sound of their footsteps had died away on the carpeted stairs. "What did you think I was doing, for pity's sake?"

Jack hadn't a thing to say. "You thought I was cheating with Steve Mayhew, that's what you thought!" Honey Lou answered the question for him. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Jack Wallack! Not trusting me!"

She tried to pass him, but he stopped her. "I do trust you," he groaned, "but I'm so darned jealous of you, Honey Lou, I think I'd shoot anybody who came between us."

"Don't talk like a movie thriller. You know nobody's going to come between us," she answered him scornfully. "And now, have you had any supper? No, of course not! Come along, I had Mary put something away for you."

Felix was restored as they sat at the kitchen table, and the fried chicken, creamed potatoes and succotash that Mary had left in the hot closet.

"But I surely was knocked silly when you came up those stairs," Honey Lou said. "I was as embarrassed as two eyes meeting through a key-hole!"

On the second of January the bills began to come in—bills for furniture, for flowers, for clothes, for beauty treatments, for lunches and teas at Sabine's restaurant.

Honey Lou simply could not believe that she had said "Charge it to Mrs. J. W. Wallack, junior," so many times, as she sat looking at all those bills!

She tucked them into a drawer of her little French desk, and shivered with a cold little fear that went to her heart like a chill.

It was a Thursday night and Mary's night "out." Angela was coming over to help her get dinner ready.

"I'll show him the bills while Angela's here," Honey Lou finally made up her mind as she went into the kitchen and went to work.

"I'm just frightened to pieces," she told Angela when they were sitting across from each other at the kitchen table, peeling vegetables for a salad. "I have about a million bills, and I know Jack's going to just blow me sky-high when I show them to him!"

"Don't be silly!" Angela said with as much sharpness as ever crept into her satiny tones. "He has plenty of money—the Mills are running, aren't they? And, anyway, I don't see where you spend so much. You have no car to keep up, no big house to heat and light. And Jack is used to living well and spending money. His mother never skimps, I notice."
